

White Petticoats at $1.00

Eight Different Styles!

We put on sale today eight different styles of White Petticoats, all at $1.00 each. Truly a style in the lot but what would bring $1.25 and several of them would easily bring $1.50. We put them on sale as a lot with this comment—they are among the best values we ever showed for $1.00. We describe four of the styles only, the other four styles are variations of these styles and equally as attractive.

Eight Different Styles!

Style 1 Petticoat of cambric displaying a wide bouffante ruffle of lawn, having three rows of cluster tucks finished with hemstitching. Lawn dust ruffle, size 38 to 44 inches.

Style 2 Petticoat of a soft quality cotton and the customary dust ruffle and a flounce edged with a very pretty quality of embroidery in several different patterns. Above the embroidery are three rows of cluster tucks separated by rows of hemstitching, making a very handsome and serviceable finish.

Style 3 Petticoat of good quality cambric, with a deep lawn ruffle, having ten rows of wide lace insertion separated by hemstitched tucks and finished with a wide lace edging, a gathered ruffle underneath serves as a protector.

Style 4 Petticoat of soft muslin, having a lawn ruffle headed with one row of princess tucks and finished with lace eight inches wide and protected by a gathered dust ruffle. Making not only a very showy skirt but also one of service.

The other four styles are variations of the above. See our window display.

Clarence Bennett, the author of the singularly successful religious drama, "The Holy City," is the son of a clergyman and a Bible student of distinction. His treatment of the sacred subject of the passion and death of Christ, the Saviour, in this play is not only reverential, but sympathetic as well. There is a simple majesty and a lofty power about the play that makes its appeal universal. It will be presented by a company of admirably equipped players at the opera house to-night, March 17.

Oil Wells in the Sea.

Of all the oil fields in the world, from the steppes of the Caucasus to the plains of Utah, where the latest and most productive field is being prospected, the most remarkable is that at Sumnerland, California, where nearly two hundred wells are being pumped in the surf of the sea.

Back of the little town on the beach and on the mesa, there are other wells, scores of them, but they are like the other oil wells of California, gaunt, skeleton devices with pump arms rising and falling to the stroke of the engines in the pump houses.

In 1906 the first oil well ever drilled in the sea was sunk from a low wharf over the Sumnerland surf. It struck oil and was immediately followed by other wells as soon as companies and individuals could get hold of frontage from which to extend their wharves to the ocean. In June, 1900, the latter year for this field, there were at Sumnerland 305 producing wells, fifty-nine abandoned wells and fifteen wells which were in process of drilling.

These wells yield from one to sixty barrels of oil per day, the average being about five barrels. The field has never had a great grabber and has never been a heavy producer in any sense of the word. In 1889 and practically in 1890 oil was worth ninety cents a barrel in Sumnerland. The cost of production from the surf wells is said to range from twenty-five to thirty-five cents per barrel.

Development continued up to 1901, since which time development of the sea field has been practically at a standstill, the wells in the territory being pumped, but no new ones put down. At the present time there are about 190 wells producing from the surf of the 415 which have been drilled since the field was discovered. Fourteen companies are operating in the Sumnerland district at this writing. Technical World Magazine.
